General Walters:

General Torrey called from Dallas. Regarding your address to World Affairs Council, he said he knew that you and he had agreed that your talk would not be too long, but he said they were getting a very good response to the luncheon and that the leadership in Dallas was signing up to attend. General Torrey has been getting questions from them as to whether there would be a question period?

General Torrey said that if you don't mind answering questions for 15 or 20 minutes, he could handle it in one of two ways.

1. Could set up microphones on the floor and you could take them in order. ✓
2. Could have written questions turned in to him at the podium for you to answer.

He would appreciate it if we would let him know how you want to handle it.
